Reflection & Living Stewardship

Today's reading from Revelation offers a vision of the City of God, the new Jerusalem. The bishops' pastoral on stewardship reminds us, "that 'life to come' is in continuity with this present life through the human goods, the worthy human purposes, which people foster now."

We are grateful this week for all stewards in our parish who assist others in deepening their relationship with Christ through evangelization, catechesis and ongoing formation.

Please pray for the women and men in our Military and their families and friends as they selflessly protect and defend our nation against all forms of terrorism especially during this Easter Season.

Guided Meditation

The next guided meditation is this Sunday, May 5th at approximately 6:30 p.m. after the 5:30 Life Teen Mass. It will surely help you to relax and replenish with the gospel allowing for reflection and introspection with the Holy Spirit.

The meditation will last about a half hour. Many parishioners have found meditation a very helpful way to assist in their prayer life as a way of communicating with the Holy Spirit within themselves and thus reducing stress.

Message from the Pastor

I love first communions here at St. Martin's. Our coordinators, Pat Ryan and Laura Leigh Agnese, Deacon Jim Biggin, all the teachers and staff, Elena Scollo and the musicians all make the day very special for the children making their first communion, as well as for their parents and family. The children are so beautifully dressed, full of innocence and faith in their hearts, as they come forward to receive the Body and Blood of Jesus for the first time. I am most grateful for the wonderful men and women who give so much of their time and talent to help form our children in the Catholic faith. God bless them.

I was disappointed that I will be missing the first two weeks of our first communions. The first week I was in Fayetteville, North Carolina, serving as the sponsor for my oldest great nephew, Thomas Patrick. He took the name St. Martin of Tours; I am not sure if he did this in honor of me or because he owns a horse and loves to ride. St. Martin is a patron of horses and those who ride them. He told me that he wants to eventually manage a horse farm and will major in this field in college. I shared with him my vast knowledge of Mr. Ed, the talking horse who spoke to Wilbur, his owner.

This week, I will be giving Fiona Grace, a great niece, her first communion in St. Patrick's in Brooklyn. Since I missed her mother Claire's first communion more than thirty years ago, I still carry guilt that we Irish are so skilled in nurturing. Now I feel guilty for missing our parish first communions so I need to re-read my old talk on dealing with guilt. I found that the previous fifty readings from guilt situations in my life have not helped that much.

I have been thinking about stewardship a great deal since I became pastor here at St. Martin's. Quite honestly, it was a word that I heard a great deal but never thought much about since I was an administrator of the Redemptorists for many years. I did talk in general about the term to my confreres, but I have an entirely new understanding of this spiritual term since I have been reading about it, meeting with other members of the parish, and consulting experts.

The term stewardship is about gratitude to God. It is truly a mindset that is not easy for any of us to attain, although I have met many people here in St. Martin's who have modeled this great virtue for me. Simply put, I have heard so many people say to me: God has been so good to me; I want to give back to him since I am so blessed and grateful. That sentence captures stewardship better than one hundred books on the topic. What amazes me is that some of the people who say this to me have very hard lives, sometimes battling life-threatening illnesses, tragedies in their families, and are of every economic situation. Gratitude is a gift from God.

I love what St. Therese said at the end of her life: All is Grace. Everything, our very life, our families and friends, our homes, however many years God gives us, the wonder of the world around us, our talents and unique personalities, every heartbeat, breath and moment is a gift from God. When we truly know and appreciate that, we are on the road to a grateful heart that wishes to respond to God's love.

When people hear the word stewardship, I think their hearts flutter a bit as they think to themselves, Father is going to ask us for money. It is true that we may well be moving toward a capital campaign to help us in the care of St. Martin's property and wonderful buildings that you and those who have gone before you have created.

But part of my biggest concern is that we do not think about stewardship as being only about money. It is not. For me, all three aspects of stewardship - time, talent, and treasure - are integral to any understanding of stewardship. When we have grateful hearts, we want to give God and his family our time, our abilities and support. At St. Martin's we have a long history of sharing these gifts with God and others.

As I thought about stewardship in the context of my recent trip, I found the hardest part of going to Thomas' confirmation was giving of my time. I wanted to be here at St. Martin's where I have many things I would like to be doing. The hassle of the traveling is always a pain in the neck - or other possible places - as I think about the airline seats. I did not have to share my abilities on the weekend, other than to be a proud and supportive uncle. The cost of the flight was expensive, but it was the loss of time that I felt the most. Still, I am so grateful to belong to a loving family that has always supported me, and I felt happy to give back to them.

I think it is far easier for people to give money to a project or a goal than to give up their time. We are so pressed for time in today's world. In many families, both parents are working; and still, all the child-rearing, the housekeeping, and family life must be done. There are so many activities the children are involved in such as sports and dance. Even as we get older and retire, each day seems filled with so many things to do. To give our time to God, to our family, to our parishioners is to truly share ourselves. When we see our precious children stepping forth to say Amen to Jesus and his Body, we are conscious that so many people shared their time and talent to make this happen. May God give us all grateful and generous hearts in response to his love. We pray the words of Psalm 112: How can I repay the LORD for all the good that he has done for me?

“Reproductive Health Act”

There are so many social justice actions for Catholics to consider in response to their core beliefs. Issues of war and peace, poverty, housing, health care, immigration, the death penalty, marriage and family are all of vital importance for every Catholic to know the Church's teaching and to seek to follow it as well as you can according to the dictates needed in the formation of our consciences. Yet, the horrors that have been revealed to us in the ongoing trail of Doctor Kermit Gosnell in Philadelphia leave almost every person shocked. I will not write in detail about what Gosnell is accused of in the abortion mill that he has run. The details are not for the young readers of this bulletin. He is accused of cruelly murdering several babies, after they were born alive in botched abortions. By and large, because it does not fit the views of the media, it was given little coverage of this national disgrace and accused mass murderer.

I know that some grow tired of the Catholic Church talking about abortion. There are some who see no major issue with aborting a fetus in early pregnancy. I disagree with this belief and think it robs a child of his or her civil rights. Still, people of almost every persuasion, liberal or conservative, stand in strong opposition to late term abortions. These abortions take the life of a baby who is alive and viable outside the womb. I remember the late Senator of New York, a liberal Democrat, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, called this practice infanticide. In his recent State of the Union Address, Governor Cuomo was speaking favorably of late term abortions. The Diocese of Rockville Centre sent out the following to all of us for our consideration:

In his State of the State address, Governor Cuomo announced his support for a bill called the “Reproductive Health Act.” This is an extreme bill, and it would greatly expand abortion in New York State. It would declare abortion a “fundamental right”, and would ensure that abortion is legal through all nine months of pregnancy, for any reason. It would make prevent any reasonable regulation such as parental notification or informed consent requirements, or bans on partial birth abortions. It would endanger women by allowing non-doctors to perform abortions. It could threaten the religious liberty of religious hospitals by requiring them to cooperate in abortions.

New York State already has far too many abortions -- over 30% of pregnancies end in abortion, over 111,000 each year. We don't need broader abortion laws. We need our law to respect human life at all stages. And we need to offer New York women real alternatives to abortion and provide them with a network of support and resources to enable them to bear their children and raise their families with dignity.

Please contact your state legislators to oppose the “Reproductive Health Act” or any other measure designed to expand abortion in New York State. To do so, visit www.nyscatholic.org and click on “Take Action.” - Father Patrick Woods CSSR

AED MACHINES

We have decided to remove the parish AED (automated external defibrillator ) machines that had been in various areas of our property. This decision was made because we were finding it difficult to keep the machines regulated on a rather frequent basis and up to date as they needed to be. We had the fear that we might seek to use one of the machines and find it was not in good order. They may well have been providing a kind of false security to us.

Some parishioners expressed concern that these machines might prove to be ineffective in an emergency and lose valuable time in caring for a person with heart issues. It was also felt that even though several parishioners had trained on the machines, that the user of the machines might find it difficult, even though they are relatively user friendly, to use the machine in a stressed situation.

Additionally, when I took the course with the training team about the AED machines, they placed far greater emphasis on giving CPR (cardiac pulmonary resuscitation) than they did on the use of the machines.

We are blessed by many nurses in our parish (and I am sure other CPR trained people) who would be quick to give CPR in an emergency situation. Also, we are grateful that the response time of the Bethpage Fire Department is excellent. We have found that to be true in a few recent experiences with this fire house.

I assure you that your health and well-being is of the utmost importance to me and that this decision was made only after careful study and consultation.
